Mindset Shift
November 7, 2017

I had the opportunity to present at the National Education Association in DC last week. The panel discussions focused on the importance of growth mindset in education. It was exciting to see how much the conversation around mindset has evolved since the start of the school year. The panelists shared many great examples of how they are incorporating growth mindset into their classrooms and schools. One of the highlights was a discussion about the power of "yet" over "never." The idea is that students can continue to grow and improve, even if they struggle with a concept at first. By focusing on the "yet" part, students are encouraged to keep working and learning.

Next week, I am looking forward to presenting at the Florida Education Association Conference in Orlando. I hope to see many of you there! As always, I welcome any questions or feedback you may have. Please feel free to reach out at brian.dassler@fldoe.org.
